Disclaimer

UMCA is not a law firm or engaged in the practice of law for its members. The information in UMCA's database is not intended to provide advice, explanation, opinion, or recommendation to a consumer about possible legal rights, remedies, defenses, options, selection of forms or strategies. UMCA's research database is not a substitute for the advice of an attorney.

The UMCA provides an online research portal to give members a broad understanding and exists as a repository for rules, regulations and laws in order to provide information regarding matters of common interest. To that extent, the Site includes general information on commonly encountered legal issues with regard to resident utility billing. UMCA's Services does not determine legal sufficiency, draw legal conclusions, provide legal advice or apply the law to the facts of your particular situation. As there are unknown issues and other facts that must be fully understood in the application of this information on its face, seeking the advice of an expert privy to the entire matter is essential.

While UMCA strives to keep its database accurate, current and up-to-date, research, rules, regulations and laws change rapidly. As such UMCA neither represents nor guarantees that the information on the Site is current. The law is different from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, and may be subject to interpretation by different courts. The law is a personal matter, and no general information database as the UMCA provides can fit every circumstance. Thus, if you need legal advice for your specific issue, or if your specific matter is too complex to be addressed by our tools, you should consult a licensed attorney in your area.

This Site is not intended to create any attorney-client relationship, and your use of UMCA does not and will not create an attorney-client relationship between you and UMCA. Instead, you are and will be representing yourself in any legal matter you undertake through UMCA's regulatory website.
